Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claim filed n March 14, 2008 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Drawings

The drawings are objected to as failing to comply with 37 CFR 1.84(p)(5) because they do not include the following reference sign(s) mentioned in the description: label 34. Corrected drawing sheets in compliance with 37 CFR 1.121(d) are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. Any amended replacement drawing sheet should include all of the figures appearing on the immediate prior version of the sheet, even if only one figure is being amended. Each drawing sheet submitted after the filing date of an application must be labeled in the top margin as either "Replacement Sheet" or "New Sheet" pursuant to 37 CFR 1.121(d). If the changes are not accepted by the examiner, the applicant will be notified and informed of any required corrective action in the next Office action. The objection to the drawings will not be held in abeyance.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent 6,436,035 to Toth et al. in view of U.S. Patent 6,211,626 to Lys et al. Toth et al. teach an intensity controlled hand-held surgical light source for use in ophthalmic surgical procedures (Col. 1, lines 9-14). The handpiece houses a light source (Fig. 1, # 22) and battery (Fig. 1, # 20) and a delivery portion (Fig. 1, # 16), the delivery portion interpreted as a cannula. Clearly the cannula has distal and proximal ends and the handpiece must be hollow to house the components. The intensity of the emitted light is controlled by a switch (Fig. 1, # 26-1) and control circuitry (Fig. 1, # 24). Toth et al. do not disclose wireless control or an LED source mounted at the distal light delivery end of the device. Lys et al. disclose a plethora of illumination configurations using light emitting diodes mounted at a distal end of an apparatus (Fig. 91). Configurations for illumination of body cavities are disclosed (Fig. 93C). The LED system is disclosed as capable of being used to illuminate the retina for ophthalmological examination. (Col. 68, lines 33-35). Lys et al. teach that LEDs do not produce heat and therefore may be located in close proximity to a target organ, thus providing motivation to move the LED to the delivery portion of the device. The reduction in size of LEDs is well known and further would allow LEDs to be mounted in smaller devices. Lys et al. further teach remote controls with RF or infrared signals (wireless) for control of the light devices (Col. 46, line 63 to Col. 47, line 15). Inherently, remote control requires a receiver and transmitted combination. It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to incorporate wireless control and LED sources as taught by Lys et al. in the device of Toth et al. as the enhancements represent technological advancements that transcend specific devices and are pervasive in today's society.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
